Dear Sir:

I am writing to ask you to please STOP the Hollywood Millennial Project. We are in the midst of a Pandemic, probably the first of many and what we really don't require for our future is more urban density. The areas that have been hardest hit are areas with high density living and commuting. One of the factors that has probably helped Los Angeles is that most people commute in cars and live in single family dwellings. The idea of high density, multi purpose building is no longer a prospect for a hopeful future. 5 years ago this might have seemed like a smart idea, but not since February of this year. In February of this year the world changed and we have to adapt. Continuing with this project is a hideous idea. It is time to give this one up and go for a long rethink. High density has become a very bad idea for the future. You need to find some new solutions.

Sincerely,

BA Letofsky
and I vote.
