City Planning and Housing Departments' Recommendations Move Forward October 14

LOS ANGELES—Los Angeles City Planning will present its new housing plan, The Plan to House LA, at the City Planning Commission (CPC) meeting on October 14. Developed alongside the City of Los Angeles Housing Department (formerly the Housing + Community Investment Department, or HCID), it proposes to unlock new housing opportunities to help meet our regional housing needs. Under the plan, City Planning would work with community groups over the next three years to rezone to accommodate at least 255,415 units in order to address the shortage of housing and plan for housing needs.

Since the draft was published on July 1, Angelenos and stakeholders have weighed in by public comment on this blueprint for addressing the City's housing crisis. The recommended plan takes bold steps to address patterns of segregation and exclusion by proposing an equitable rezoning strategy, along with a variety of policies and programs to meet our housing needs in a way that will advance a more equitable distribution of affordable housing, strengthen tenant protections, and support the preservation of existing affordable housing.

The City Planning Commission meeting will be held by teleconference starting at 8:30 a.m. on Thursday, October 14. The agenda is posted on City Planning's website.
